

SHIELDS

Viking warriors protected themselves with round shields. The shields were wooden and were sometimes covered in leather and painted bright colors.

Eventually, kite-shape shields replaced the round shields. The longer shields protected you better, which is a really, really good thing.

